

Delegation

- Delegation is a preferable mechanism to implementation inheritance as it does not interfere with existing components and leads to more robust code.
- Note that specification inheritance is preferable to delegation in subtyping situations as it leads to a more extensible design.

