You've completed the Factory Pattern! 🏭

Ian Tyler Applebaum · Instructor · Temple University CIS

- The Factory Method pattern was used to customize button creation.
- Separate ButtonCreator subclasses were created for each button type.
- Each button type now has a specific factory method.
- The code is more modular and extensible.
- The Factory Method pattern provides flexibility, especially in larger applications where product types might vary dynamically.